Interested in Growing Hemp in South Carolina?

Application process sets out restrictive details of pilot project

By Marsha Hewitt
Editor, SC Market Bulletin

Is hemp potentially the answer to many farmers' financial problems? The jury is out. In fact, just getting a permit to grow industrial hemp is available to only a few South Carolina growers. Whether the crop justifies the effort won't be determined for another year or so, after the first crop is harvested.

The SC Department of Agriculture received a barrage of calls soon after the legislature passed the Industrial Hemp Pilot Program. Applications are now available on-line or in person at our office, but for many folks, the restrictions may be too cumbersome.

For starters, only 20 growers will be chosen statewide. Restrictions are many. First, growers must pass a state and federal background check. Then, farmers must have a marketing plan for a crop they know nothing about, and they need a letter of intent from a hemp processor or manufacturer.

That means Mr. Farmer must convince an out-of-state processor that he knows what he's doing. The closest processors are in North Carolina and Kentucky.

Would-be hemp growers must determine whether they want to focus on grain, fiber, seeds or planting stock. Then there's the letter of intent with a South Carolina college or university for research purposes, per federal and state law.

The program allows only 20 acres of hemp per permit to be planted, and every field must be mapped with its FSA Farm Number. Once the permit is issued, the field size cannot be increased, decreased or transferred, even on the same property. There'll be no hiding the hemp.

If Cousin Bubba wants to help in that back field, he might change his mind when he finds out he'll need a background check by SLED. And law enforcement can drop in on the fields at any time, unannounced, for inspection.

Each farmer's name and county will be released to the public, and other law enforcement officials can visit at their discretion. If any person connected with the farm has a felony conviction, it's no hemp for you.

Anyone who still wants to apply must do so by Sept. 15. No email submissions, no late submissions, no asking SCDA people to help fill out the application.

"Our department is receiving many, many calls per week and we are doing our best to advise people on a vast number of questions," said Clint Leach, assistant commissioner for SCDA.

"Once all the applications are in, we will assemble a review committee to select the very best 20 growers in South Carolina. We are eager to see if this program will indeed be feasible for our farmers."

For those who still think hemp is the crop of the future, check out the online application at www.agriculture.sc.gov. But you'd better not let the grass grow under your feet. There's a lot to get done before the deadline. Don't forget the $50 fee.

Either drop the paperwork off at the fifth floor of the Wade Hampton Building, 1200 Senate St. (on the State House grounds) in Columbia, or mail it to:

Commissioner's School 2017

It is always rewarding for me to see the younger generation get excited about agriculture, and the South Carolina Commissioner's School for Agriculture provides that opportunity each summer.

Last month, 38 exceptional high school juniors and seniors from South Carolina, Georgia, and Delaware spent the week of July 22-28 attending this academic program at Clemson University. Commissioner's School provided these young men and women with an inside look at various academic offerings and potential careers in agriculture and natural resources, but with some fun mixed in along the way. Throughout the week, the group took part in workshops, discussions and laboratories, all while gaining skills in leadership and professional development.

While the program is primarily on Clemson University's campus, the group spent their first full day traveling down to the Midlands to tour a diverse group of farms. Students told me that they were blown away with their tours of Amick Farms, Log Creek Timber, Titan Farms and Yon Family Farms as they learned more about these family-owned businesses. I thank these folks for giving their time to support the program.

Eclipse Looms Over South Carolina

Emergency Management Division offers tips for the big event

On Aug. 21, a total solar eclipse will be visible along a roughly 100 mile-wide path that runs diagonally across America from Oregon to South Carolina. Starting at 2:39 p.m. on that Monday, areas from Greenville to Columbia to Charleston will experience the longest period of 100 percent total eclipse on the entire East Coast—about two and a half minutes of total darkness.

The S.C. Emergency Management Division is planning for an influx of more than 1 million visitors into South Carolina for several days on either side of the eclipse. Expect nearly everything to be above capacity for nearly a week. Residents, businesses and visitors should be prepared for this historic event by keeping safety in mind.

Here are some tips to survive the week safely, with a minimum of inconvenience:

Residents

- Plan where you will go to view the eclipse and be prepared for heavy traffic.
- Take care of your normal weekend activities in advance.
- Fill your vehicle with gas and buy groceries before the weekend.
- Make sure you have bottled water, sunscreen, a first aid kit and eclipse viewing glasses.

Policies for Advertising

Only ads pertaining to the production of agricultural products and related items are published.

Only one ad per category is allowed, but readers may submit ads in up to four different categories. "For Sale" ads must include a price. Ads will be published one time only.

The advertiser's complete name, address, zip code, county, and phone number with area code are required for each ad. However, only the person's name, county, and phone number are listed. Advertisements can be no longer than 150 characters including name, county, and phone number.

Out-of-state ads are not accepted.

Advertisements from anyone acting in the capacity of an agent cannot be accepted. That includes ads from dealers, merchants or commercial businesses, including real estate ads. We do not accept sealed bids, legal notices or consignment sales.

The Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit and/or verify ads and notices. Ads are received in good faith, and the Bulletin assumes no responsibility for their content.

There is no charge for advertising.

The deadline is noon on Tuesday of the week before publication. Check each category for specific rules.

Ads may be submitted by:

- Mail: SC Market Bulletin Advertising, PO Box 11280, Columbia, SC 29211. Please use 8½ x 11 inch paper.
- Fax: 803-734-0659
- On-line: Go to www.agriculture.sc.gov. Look for Market Bulletin, select "post an ad," and follow the instructions. If an email address is included, a reminder will be sent for ad renewal. Do not use all capital letters.

During the application process, each student pre-selected an academic emphasis area in either Livestock Production, Natural Resources, or Plant Science, and they got to spend a day in sessions specific to their preference. Throughout the week, students also got an inside look at managing athletic turf grass on Death Valley and determining water quality at Wildcat Creek in Clemson's Experimental Forest. In the classroom, they learned how to tackle misconceptions in agriculture and become better advocates for the industry. The group stayed busy in the evenings as well with an etiquette dinner, a discussion meet, and a Certified SC Grown farm to table dinner.

As I said, there's plenty of fun to reward the group for their hard work in academic sessions; they spent a day white water rafting down the wild and scenic Chattooga River in Long Creek. They had perfect weather this year and enjoyed their six hours on the river. The rafting highlight is surviving the Class 4 rapid known as Bull Sluice.

Blanche and I enjoyed meeting all of this year's participants and their families at the closing reception. It is always a pleasure to present each student with his or her Certificate of Completion and hear how rewarding the week was for each of them. I am reminded each year of how fortunate South Carolina is to have a great future generation of leaders for the agriculture industry. There were some proud parents gathered for the ceremony.

It is important to me to prepare the upcoming generation to lead our state's Number 1 industry, and it is our responsibility to help make that happen. The SC Commissioner's School for Agriculture was designed to educate students on all potential career options in this industry. I have been tremendously pleased with the overall success of the program. Since 2004, we have graduated 500 students. We have alumni who are working for Merck Animal Health, ArborOne, AgSouth, Pennington Seed and even several who have returned to the family farm.

The Commissioner's School for Agriculture wouldn't be possible without the partnership between the SC Department of Agriculture and Clemson University's College of Agriculture, Forestry and Life Sciences. Look for applications for next year's program in January 2018.

Hands-on Experience

McLeod Named Farmer of the Year

Kemp McLeod of McBee raises 22 peach varieties, strawberries, pumpkins and row crops on 7,500 acres. He operates a successful roadside store along a busy four-lane highway, along with a museum and a restaurant.

As a result of his success as a peach and crop farmer, McLeod has been selected as the state winner of the Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo Southeastern Farmer of the Year award.

His produce is sold at three locations, the roadside market south of McBee, a packing house north of McBee and at the Pee Dee Farmer's Market in Florence.

Eclipse Looms

Businesses

- Prepare for a big jump in customers. Grocery stores, gas stations, hotels, restaurants, transportation services, coffee shops, retail stores, urgent care clinics and others will experience increased business.
- Order goods early and schedule staff accordingly. Merchants may want to adjust hours beginning Aug. 18 through Aug. 21.
- Some suppliers may change delivery schedules due to increased traffic.
- Many schools are operating on altered schedules on Monday. Employees may need to make schedule adjustments for their children.
- Be prepared for more cash transactions and potential challenges with credit/debit card transactions.
- Cell service may experience overloads. Visitors may request to use your business telephone.
- Some visitors will be camping, so merchants should expect requests from customers to use rest rooms.
- Have extra water available for visitors.

Agriculture and Agribusiness

- Everyone wants to see this historic event. Make sure workers in the field have protective eyewear.
- Talk to your employees well ahead of time so they know what to expect regarding the work day, especially the afternoon hours.

Everyone

- Give yourself plenty of time to get to your destination. Traffic will be heavy all weekend.
- Once you get to your eclipse event, stay there until well after the eclipse is over.
- If you are driving during the eclipse, KEEP MOVING. Do not stop your vehicle on any roadway.
- Know what to do in the event of severe weather or an emergency. Visit the website scemd.org ahead of time.
- Call 9-1-1 for life safety emergencies only.

RECIPE CORNER

Featuring Certified SC Products

Peach Iced Tea

Ingredients:

Simple Syrup
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
2 ripe peaches, thinly sliced,
plus more for serving tea

3-4 tea bags
8 cups water

Instructions:

- Bring sugar, water, and peaches to a boil in a small saucepan. Lower heat and use a wooden spoon to stir and crush the peaches to infuse the flavor
- Once the sugar is dissolved, cover, remove from heat and let steep for 25 to 30 minutes.
- In the meantime, brew the tea, using either a large pot or a tea maker. Remove bags and transfer tea to a pitcher. Refrigerate.
- Pour the simple syrup into a bottle or container over a fine mesh strainer to strain out the peaches. Reserve the peaches for another use, such as serving over oats or ice cream sundaes.
- To serve, either add all the simple syrup to the tea and stir, or add as much simple syrup to the tea as you like. Serve tea over ice. Garnish with fresh sliced peaches if desired.

Agritourism Event

Eclipse Viewing Aug. 21

This unique occurrence is an experience that you and your family should not miss!

*We invite you to view the
